Benefits under the Scheme

Through expansion and strengthening of ITIs it is envisaged to equip the youth with employable vocational skills. Keeping in view local industrial scenario, participating States have identified trades for introduction in new ITI.s as well as existing ITI.s.

Introduction of long-term and short-term courses

There will be two types of courses:

- a) Long-term trades of regular duration under the Craftsmen Training Scheme. These trades will be conducted under the National Council for Vocational Training (NCVT).
- b) Short-term courses under State Council for Vocational Training (SCVT). Short-term courses have been specially identified and designed to cater to the immediate training requirements in service and manufacturing sectors. Curricula for short-term vocational training courses have been prepared by Central Staff Training and Research Institute (CSTAR), Kolkata under its Project No. 150. The Course curricula have been designed by CSTAR in consultation with the concerned States as well as trades experts drawn from different institutes and industrial establishments. Duration of short-term courses ranges from 3 months to 6 months.

Broadly speaking, the following benefits will flow from the Scheme:

- 1. Additional seating capacity of 3152 will be created through setting up of 22 new ITIs. State-wise addition of seats is at Annex-IV.

Sanction of funds for different activities envisaged under the Scheme to the concerned States and monitoring is being done by DGE&T. Prime Minister's Office (PMO) and Department of Development of North-Eastern Region (DDONER), Govt. of India periodically review the Scheme.

Central Project Implementation Unit (CPIU) headed by Director of Training (Project), DGE&T under the Ministry of Labour is responsible for processing the state proposals and release of central shares under different components of the Scheme. A Link Officer of the rank of Joint Director from CSTARI, Kolkata has also been assigned to closely supervise the progress of implementation of the Scheme.
